CALL FOR FILM SUBMISSIONS – DEADLINE APRIL 20, 2007

The Plymouth Independent Film Festival, now entering its third year, is a compelling success story. If you are a filmmaker, this is your opportunity to get your film out there and seen. Attendance has reached nearly 5,000 in each of PIFF's first two seasons. Previous festival attendees included award winning filmmakers, including Ricky Leacock, Al Maysles, Robert Drew, D.A. Pennebaker, Robbie Leppzer, John Fiore, and Bill Plympton, as well as film producers, production staff, actors, and the media.

Last year, 110 films were shown, and six films won in several categories including Best Feature, Best Short, Best Environmental, Best Diversity, Best Student (Long), and Best Student (Short). This year, your film could take home one of the coveted PIFF awards!

If you've been thinking of creating a film or are in production, now is the time to mark these dates on your calendar. Submissions will be accepted by April 20, with an early entry discount for films submitted by April 2. Late deadline is May 11.

PIFF'07 will again accept works in progress from regional, national, and international filmmakers. Foreign language films without subtitles will only be eligible to be screened as works in progress. All genres will be considered.

From July 18 through July 22, there will again be opportunities to study the filmmaking process during workshops and master classes led by professionals, attend discussion groups and panels, Q&A sessions following screenings, and chances to network with filmmakers and film buffs.
